Navy Fires
Polaris From Under Water

Dummy Ballistic
Missile Then Noses
Over Into Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy said Thursday it has test fired a dummy Polaris ballistic missile from underwater for the first time.

The missile, the same size, shape and weight as the 1,500-mile-range polaris, was fired March 23 from a new "pop-up" launcher off San Clemente Island, near Los Angeles.

Rear Adm. W. F. Raborn, head of the Navy's Polaris program, showed motion pictures of the event.

They disclosed the dummy missile, apparently about 30 feet long, popping up through the smooth surface of the Pacific and rising several hundred feet in a geyser of spray.

Plunges Into Water

Then the orange-colored missile angled over and plunged nose first back into the water.

Raborn, director of the special projects office of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance, told a Navy League symposium on seapower that the Polaris would be ready for use in 1960, or about the date originally set for the beginning of tests.

Raborn said the basic problems have all passed from the scientific to the engineering stage. This means, he said, that no new breakthrough or sensational advances in development are required to carry the new weapon system into reality.

Robert E. Gross, chairman of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif., told the group the Lockheed Polaris is the only one of the nation's ballistic missiles that is now ahead of schedule.

Raborn said the Polaris would bring within the range of direct attack from the sea virtually all the important military targets in that part of the world controlled by the Communists.

Quickly Reaches Target

He added that the weapon could reach these targets within 15 minutes of firing.

Raborn said that the United States knows the location, with sufficient precision for the use of ballistic weapons if we have to, of at least 85 per cent of the targets "we would be interested in."

The admiral said the Polaris combines the almost limitless cruising range of the nuclear submarine and the vast potentiality of ocean concealment with the longest range, highest speed and most lethal weapon ever developed, the H-bomb-armed ballistic missile.

Aircraft Workers
To Be Furloughed

DALLAS (AP)—Chance Vought Aircraft officials said 600 to 700 production employees will be given a one-week furlough Monday to permit production line changes.

The officials said the plant has a backlog of orders of more than 670 million dollars. The changes are necessary to begin producing the F8U Crusader jet fighter plane for the Navy.

Pep Drug Responsible For Housewife's Death

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A coroner's jury has ruled that a pep drug, taken in amounts recommended by its manufacturer, killed a San Francisco housewife.

Dr. John Henderson, who examined the woman at Stanford Hospital where she had died, testified he had been told by a manufacturer's employee that some 100 patients in the United States and Mexico had become seriously ill with jaundice after using the drug, and that 20 had died.

Dr. Henderson said he got his information from Dr. Robert Dixon, who is in charge of the manufacturer's medical investigation staff.

Figures Back
Ike's Policy
Of Caution

WASHINGTON (AP)—A slowdown in the downward movement of retail sales and personal income occurred in March, the government reported Friday.

The figures are expected to strengthen President Eisenhower's conviction that the time has not arrived for a tax cut to stimulate the economy.

A prominent Democrat, Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, also counseled a go-slow attitude, saying, "I think we had better see a little farther before we start cutting taxes."

The National Grange, however, came out in opposition to what it called the Eisenhower administration's wait-and-see policy. It called for a program of tax reduction, public works and farm legislation.

The Grange, the country's oldest national farm organization, proposed a cut of four percentage points in the tax on the first $1,000 of taxable individual incomes. It said this would give taxpayers $2,000,000, or about $40 apiece, this year.

The Grange also called for a speedup in the construction of roads, water resource development projects, and defense food stockpiling facilities.

The Commerce Department reported sales in all types of retail stores last month were $15,417,000,000, or one per cent below the February total and two per cent below March 1957.

The department said the annual rate of personal income last month was $344,400,000,000 compared with $341,700,000,000 a month earlier.

In both cases, the rate of decline was less steep than in February.

The income figures showed a big drop of $1,100,000,000 in the annual rate of wage and salary payments, reflecting further layoffs and slowdowns in industry, but this was partly offset by increases in farm income and other categories.

Cuba Rebel
Force Sets
Off Dynamite

60-Ton Dump Is Blown Up In Hit,
Run Guerrilla Raid

HAVANA (AP)—The Cuban revolt blazed again Friday in a hit-and-run guerrilla raid and a 30-ton dynamite blast set off by Fidel Castro's saboteurs.

Explosion of a huge dynamite dump in eastern Oriente Province damaged buildings and shattered windows in Santiago, nearly 12 miles away.

The dump in foothills below the town of El Cobre contained 60,000 pounds of dynamite. The force of the jolting explosion apparently was funneled eastward down the hills toward Santiago, Cuba's second largest city.

Castro's men moved into El Cobre before dawn and occupied the town briefly.

Reports reaching Havana said they first burned the city hall and threatened to set fire to the electoral board offices. They held off further destruction when residents pleaded that flames would sweep the town of 2,000.

Revered Place

El Cobre is one of the most revered places in Cuba. Its Roman Catholic cathedral contains the image of the Holy Virgin of El Cobre, patron saint of Cuban Catholics.

Army reinforcements rushed to the town and the rebels scattered to the hills of the Sierra Maestra. The dynamite blast was set off by the rebels after they fled from El Cobre. The explosives were stored in the foothills dump by a construction company supplier.

Rebel forces in Santiago apparently were far better organized than those in Havana. They started their action just before noon Wednesday with groups of women swarming into business establishments in the heart of the city distributing bulletins calling for a strike.

Few Employes Return

Police reinforcements were rushed into all commercial areas, forcing business places to reopen. They did but few employes returned to work immediately.

Traffic almost vanished from the streets. Army technicians took over radio and TV stations after station employes walked out.

By late Wednesday night the outburst had mushroomed into large scale bombings, shootings and sabotage of public utility systems. The entire city was blacked out.

Eyewitnesses said young rebels raced through the city on foot and in cars, hurling bottled gasoline bombs at government buildings and police and army patrols.

The Cuban Telephone Co. offices were invaded and an army censor was killed. The towers and antenna of radio station Libertad were wrecked.

One gun battle covering a four-block area in the center of Santiago raged for two hours. Seven rebels were killed in that clash.

Four Rebels Killed

Four rebels died in another sharp encounter in a suburb. Isolated killings and injuries occurred in wide areas of the city.

By Thursday morning the aged and other rebel sympathizers who could not join in the shooting attacks on armed forces went into another type action. From the windows of their homes they poured tons of garbage, old furniture and trash on the streets in an effort to block the movement of police and army vehicles.

Legal Barrier
Faces Boat Men

WASHINGTON (AP)—The atomic Energy Commission Friday threw up a legal barrier against the plan by four Americans to sail a small boat into the Eniwetok area as a protest against forthcoming U. S. nuclear tests. The four will be subject to arrest if they proceed with their plan.

The AEC issued a regulation, effective immediately, prohibiting all U. S. citizens and persons subject to U. S. jurisdiction from entering, attempting to enter, or conspiring to enter the proclaimed danger zone.

Issued under AEC's broad general powers, it applies only to Americans because much of the danger zone is high seas under international law. The United States can control its own citizens, but only warn other nationals.

The 30-foot ketch Golden Rule, with four persons aboard, sailed from San Pedro, Calif., March 25 to protest the forthcoming nuclear tests. The voyage is sponsored by the Committee for Non-Violent Action Against Nuclear Weapons.

U.S. Rejects Parley Plan

Soviets Asked
Big 3 To Meet
In Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States swiftly rejected Friday the price Russia demanded to open lower-level diplomatic talks in advance of an East-West summit meeting.

The White House, moving with unusual speed, turned a cold shoulder to a new Russian note renewing the Kremlin's bid for top-level talks.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty labeled the Soviet reply, the 12th in a round which began last December, as "not an acceptance" of Western conditions for a summit meeting.

The Soviets proposed that Western Big Three ambassadors meet next Thursday in Moscow with Russian representatives. They proposed that this be followed up by a foreign ministers conference between May 1 and May 15.

Three Objections

Top officials in studying the Soviet note quickly found these three objections:

1. Russia is seeking to force the West to agree to a summit meeting even before the results of lower-level diplomatic talks are known. The West has insisted that a top-level meeting be convened only if prior diplomatic talks demonstrate prospect of agreement.

2. The talks by ambassadors which Moscow has suggested would be limited to discussing organizational arrangements for the later foreign ministers meeting. The West has suggested the ambassadors be the main avenue for solid negotiations aimed at narrowing East-West differences.

3. Russia is insisting on the right to veto any discussion of problems to which it objects at the later foreign ministers conference. This would guarantee that only topics agreeable to the Kremlin would be discussed at the summit, presumably ruling out negotiations on German unity and more freedom for European satellites of Russia.

The speedy American reaction came while President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles discussed the newest Soviet diplomatic move at the White House. It reflected the administration's reported determination to reply swiftly to Soviet notes which are viewed as mainly designed for international propaganda.

Will Be Studied

Hagerty's comment, read to newsmen, said the implications of the Soviet note "will, of course, be carefully studied."

The State Department said it would begin close consultations promptly with America's 14 Atlantic Pact allies to draft a reply for the Kremlin.

Diplomatic authorities forecast that the Western answer would be a counterproposal, reasserting a desire to meet at the summit but only with satisfactory diplomatic preparation showing that the meeting would not be a spectacle.

Former Gov.
Dever Dies

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Former Gov. Paul A. Dever, 55, of Massachusetts died in his sleep early Friday. He has been under treatment for a heart condition.

Dever was nationally known in political circles. He was the keynote speaker at the 1952 Democratic National Convention. In the 1956 convention he was an organizer of the close but losing race Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy ran for the vice presidential nomination.

The funeral will be at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Cambridge.

Dever was found dead by his sister, Marie, with whom he made his home. She was official hostess for her bachelor brother when he was the state's chief executive.

He was defeated in his first try for the State Senate but won three terms in the House. He was elected attorney general in 1934, one of the youngest ever to hold that office, and he retained it for three terms.

Dever was defeated by 5,588 votes for governor in 1940, and six years later he lost out for lieutenant governor by 6,800 votes.

He served in the Navy during World War II. One of his assignments was setting up the military absentee ballot program for servicemen in the 1944 elections.

Dever reentered politics as a candidate for governor in 1948, and was elected by nearly 390,000 votes—polling the largest vote ever accorded a governor.

He served two terms, and was defeated in his try for third term in 1952.

Lana Sobs Slaying Details

Lana Turner, her voice tremulous and her face contorted with emotion, tells a coroner's jury yesterday of her frantic efforts to help Johnny Stompanato, her latin boy friend, as he lay on her bedroom floor. He had been fatally stabbed by her 14-year-old daughter, Cheryl, after, the actress related, he had cursed and tried to strangle her. The jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Stans Again
Protests Hasty
Tax Proposals

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—In a fresh protest against hasty tax reduction and massive spending proposals, Budget Director Maurice H. Stans said that this country can be wrecked by financial irresponsibility just as much as by military carelessness.

Stans delivered his second attack this week on what he described as an extravagant spending attitude in Congress.

Congress has moved far away from any hope of balanced budgets for 1959 and possibly several more years, President Eisenhower's budget chief said Friday in a speech prepared for graduation exercises at the school of business administration of the University of North Carolina.

If a big-scale business stimulant should be needed, Stans said, a selective tax cut should come first because it would provide extra spending power quickly. Public works projects are slow-moving, he said, and can result in big federal deficits and inflation later on.

"Neither the challenge posed by Sputnik nor the current recession should be allowed to stampede us into hasty, ill-considered action which would add unnecessarily to our future burdens," Stans said.

Stans scolded Congress for abandoning the economy drive which it launched last year when the administration proposed a 70-billion-dollar budget.

"Now with the programs Congress is considering, we are threatened with 80 billion dollar budgets for the next few years, which could well mean extended deficit spending," he said.

Boy With Rare
Heart Defect To Undergo Checkup

BALTIMORE (AP)—An Iowa boy with a rare heart defect has a checkup appointment with surgeons at Johns Hopkins Hospital Saturday.

Steve Smejkal, 9, of Cedar Rapids, was given a diagnosis about a year ago. Now, Hopkins surgeons want to see how he's coming along and whether an operation is necessary.

The Kiwanis Club in his home town donated $1,000 to help finance the operation, if it is needed. It may cost as much as $3,500 in all. Steve's mother, Mrs. Louis Smejkal, is a widow.

HARRISBURG, Ill. (AP)—A bird dog born here is growing green fur—and it's a natural camouflage.

Jones said a doctor had told him an infection in the mother had caused the discoloration. The pup was one of seven.

The other pups are white.

Tavern Owner
Finds Fortune
Hidden In Wall

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—James Vambakes is turning his tavern here into a sporting goods store, and the move already looks like a financial success.

Workmen battering down a wall found a huge stack of old $10 bills, estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000. They have been sent to a bank in St. Louis for examination.

Vambakes said he didn't know how the bills might have ended up in his tavern, which was left to him by his father several years ago. He said he's certain his father didn't stash them away.

"They might have been dumped there by a bank robber for all I know," Vambakes said.

Mended Heart
Fails Girl, 7

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—After surgeons had mended a hole in Brenda Ikert's heart last November, she began to hope that some day she could be a dancer.

Last month, after long convalescence, she had strength enough to try on the little ballet costume that nurses kept hanging in her hospital room. For a 7-year-old, that was a big day.

The heart surgery followed a fund-raising campaign among friends and neighbors in Lisbon, Ohio, where she lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ikert.

Twice later, additional surgery was necessary. When it seemed she was much better, there would be a hidden infection to create a setback. But the slow progress continued, and she was to go home next Sunday.

Then suddenly a few days ago, she became worse. Late Thursday the repaired heart stopped.

On Sunday there will be funeral services in Lisbon.

Soviets Seek Summit Talks

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union offered Friday to join the West in swift preparations for a summit conference but demanded that the top-level meeting be held even if preliminary talks fail.

The Soviet attitude was set forth in notes to the United States, Britain and France, delivered by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. The notes were made public later.

The communications answered a joint Western declaration of March 31 which outlined terms for arranging and preparing summit talks.

Nervous Disorders
Increase In Hungary

VIENNA (AP)—Hungarian newspapers are publishing official statistics showing nervous disorders are increasing in Hungary.

The paper Nepszava, received here, quoted a Budapest doctor as saying: "Occupational neuroses are caused by certain factors which are in a relation to work and the place of work. They occur especially if the nervous systems of workers are over-burdened by certain (unnamed) circumstances."

Lie Detector
Implicates Man
In Slaying

CHICAGO (AP)—A lie detector test has indicated that Barry Cook, 21, has guilty knowledge of the mysterious lakefront slaying of a woman sunbather, Chief of Detectives Patrick J. Deeley said Friday.

Deeley made the report as Cook appeared in court on another case, but where witnesses to the slaying would have an opportunity to view him.

The victim, Miss Margaret Gallagher, 50, was beaten to death July 22, 1956, by a bare-chested man who pounced on her from a clump of bushes while she was sunbathing alone in Lincoln Park.

A horrified apartment dweller, Arthur Kirk Besley, 52, helplessly watched the assault through binoculars from his 15th floor living room. He had been watching sailboats in the lake.

John Reid, who supervised the lie detector tests, said Cook displayed an uncooperative attitude which made ineffective questions put to him about the dismemberment slaying of Judith Mae Anderson, 15, in August 1957.

Parts of the girl's body were found in two oil drums floating in Lake Michigan.

Cook was shot, wounded and captured Feb. 26 by policemen investigating north side rape attempts.

He was indicted for rape and attempted robbery in one of the assault cases and was required to appear in Criminal Court when the state moved to continue his trial from May 19 to June 2.

Maltese Workers
In Demonstration

VALLETTA, Malta (AP)—Maltese workers demonstrated Friday night in their biggest anti-British show since Premier Dom Mintoff began his campaign to integrate Malta with Britain.

About 5,000 demonstrators carried signs urging Englishmen to go home. Barbed wire barricaded Admiralty House but the marchers massed at the sunset flag ceremony at Briths Gov. Sir Robert Lavoeck's palace and jeered it.

off has demanded that Britain give this Mediterranean naval base island political equality with England, Scotland and Wales in the United Kingdom.

Radiation Protector May Carry Danger Of Cancer

By FRANK CAREY
Science Reporter

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A potentially life-saving protector against radiation from atomic bombs also may carry a slight risk of causing cancer, a government researcher claims.

Researcher Delta E. Uphoff of the National Cancer Institute said Friday this is suggested by experiments with mice in which it was shown that injections of bone marrow protected the mice from lethal doses of radiation but that some of them developed cancer.

She said that the cancer development was related to the combination of radiation exposure and administration of the bone marrow.

Verdict Not Binding On Court Action

Sobbing Actress
Testifies Events
Leading To Slaying

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"He said he would kill me and my daughter and my mother," Lana Turner sobbed to a coroner's jury which later Friday decided her daughter's killing of Johnny Stompanato was justifiable.

The actress declared her last words to Stompanato were: "Don't ever touch me again! I'm absolutely finished. This is the end and I want you to get out!"

Then, the blonde star said, her daughter Cheryl slipped a kitchen knife into Stompanato's stomach "and I swear it was so fast I truthfully thought she had hit him in the stomach."

She added that in the argument preceding the stabbing Stompanato, while Cheryl was standing at the door, "came to me like he was going to strangle me."

Slaying Justified

After hearing more than an hour of her tremulous testimony, the jury of 10 men and two women decided 14-year-old Cheryl's slaying of her mother's lover was justifiable homicide.

The verdict is not binding on the courts, however. Cheryl, who has been at Juvenile Hall since the slaying last Friday night, will learn her future at a Juvenile Court hearing April 24. She could go free, be made a ward of the court, sent to a foster home, or placed in the custody of her mother or father. The latter is Stephen Crane, second of Miss Turner's four husbands.

Lana, in the first public account of the nightmarish scene in the pink-carpeted bedroom of her Beverly Hills home, took the stand at a jammed courtroom on the eighth floor of the Hall of Records.

Often choking with emotion, she told of her struggle to break off her romance with the handsome former underworld figure who had been her companion for months.

Letters the two wrote to each other, made public this week, were full of endearments and words of longing for each other. But Lana told of threats he made. The letters indicated their romance was cooling, that she questioned the wisdom of the association.

Threatened Her

Once in London, she said, he threatened to slash her face with a razor. And just before he was killed, she said, Stompanato threatened to "kill me and my daughter and my mother." Miss Turner gave this account of the violent quarrel that preceded the killing.

"I walked into my daughter's room and she was watching TV. I walked over to her and Mr. Stompanato was behind me all the time and saying some very bad things."

"The language was bad, swearing, and I turned to Mr. Stompanato . . . I said, 'I've told you I do not want to argue in front of the baby.' I've always called her that . . ."

"I went downstairs with Mr. Stompanato following me, and the quarrel was now becoming more violent, and I answered back that I was just finding out too many lies. . . ."

The actress said she told him, "I can't go on like this. You know that I have begged, I've pleaded for you to leave me alone even with all your threats."

She added that he followed her to the bedroom and: "Mr. Stompanato grabbed me by the arms and began shaking me, cursing me very badly and saying that, as he had told me before, no matter what I did, how I tried to get away, he would never let me; that if he said jump, I would jump; if he said hop, I would hop, and I would have to do any and everything he told me, or he . . ."

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty labeled the Soviet reply, the 12th in a round which began last December, as "not an acceptance" of Western conditions for a summit meeting.

The Soviets proposed that Western Big Three ambassadors meet next Thursday in Moscow with Russian representatives. They proposed that this be followed up by a foreign ministers conference between May 1 and May 15.

Three Objections

Top officials in studying the Soviet note quickly found these three objections:

1. Russia is seeking to force the West to agree to a summit meeting even before the results of lower-level diplomatic talks are known. The West has insisted that a top-level meeting be convened only if prior diplomatic talks demonstrate prospect of agreement.

2. The talks by ambassadors which Moscow has suggested would be limited to discussing organizational arrangements for the later foreign ministers meeting. The West has suggested the ambassadors be the main avenue for solid negotiations aimed at narrowing East-West differences.

3. Russia is insisting on the right to veto any discussion of problems to which it objects at the later foreign ministers conference. This would guarantee that only topics agreeable to the Kremlin would be discussed at the summit, presumably ruling out negotiations on German unity and more freedom for European satellites of Russia.

The speedy American reaction came while President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles discussed the newest Soviet diplomatic move at the White House. It reflected the administration's reported determination to reply swift to Soviet notes which are viewed as mainly designed for international propaganda.

Will Be Studied

Hagerty's comment, read to newsmen, said the implications of the Soviet note "will, of course, be carefully studied."

The State Department said it would begin close consultations promptly with America's 14 Atlantic Pact allies to draft a reply for the Kremlin.

Diplomatic authorities forecast that the Western answer would be a counterproposal, reasserting a desire to meet at the summit but only with satisfactory diplomatic preparation showing that the meeting would not be a spectacle.

Former Gov. Dever Dies

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Former Gov. Paul A. Dever, 55, of Massachusetts died in his sleep early Friday. He has been under treatment for a heart condition.

Dever was nationally known in political circles. He was the keynote speaker at the 1952 Democratic National Convention. In the 1956 convention he was an organizer of the close but losing race Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy ran for the vice presidential nomination.

The funeral will be at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Cambridge.

Dever was found dead by his sister, Marie, with whom he made his home. She was official hostess for her bachelor brother when he was the state's chief executive.

He was defeated in his first try for the State Senate but won three terms in the House. He was elected attorney general in 1934, one of the youngest ever to hold that office, and he retained it for three terms.

Dever was defeated by 5,588 votes for governor in 1940, and six years later he lost out for lieutenant governor by 6,800 votes.

He served in the Navy during World War II. One of his assignments was setting up the military absentee ballot program for servicemen in the 1944 elections.

Dever reentered politics as a candidate for governor in 1948, and was elected by nearly 390,000 votes — polling the largest vote ever accorded a governor.

He served two terms, and was defeated in his try for third term in 1952.

Lana Sobs Slaying Details

Lana Turner, her voice tremulous and her face contorted with emotion, tells a coroner's jury yesterday of her frantic efforts to help Johnny Stompanato, her Latin boy friend, as he lay on her bedroom floor. He had been fatally stabbed by her 14-year-old daughter, Cheryl, after, the actress related, he had cursed and tried to strangle her. The jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Stans Again Protests Hasty Tax Proposals

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—In a fresh protest against hasty tax reduction and massive spending proposals, Budget Director Maurice H. Stans said that this country can be wrecked by financial irresponsibility just as much as by military carelessness.

Stans delivered his second attack this week on what he described as an extravagant spending attitude in Congress.

Congress has moved far away from any hope of balanced budgets for 1959 and possibly several more years, President Eisenhower's budget chief said Friday in a speech prepared for graduation exercises at the school of business administration of the University of North Carolina.

If a big-scale business stimulant should be needed, Stans said, a selective tax cut should come first because it would provide extra spending power quickly. Public works projects are slow-moving, he said, and can result in big federal deficits and inflation later on.

"Neither the challenge posed by Sputnik nor the current recession should be allowed to stampede us into hasty, ill-considered action which would add unnecessarily to our future burdens," Stans said.

Stans scolded Congress for abandoning the economy drive which it launched last year when the administration proposed a 70-billion-dollar budget.

"Now with the programs Congress is considering, we are threatened with 80 billion dollar budgets for the next few years, which could well mean extended deficit spending," he said.

Boy With Rare Heart Defect To Undergo Checkup

BALTIMORE (AP)—An Iowa boy with a rare heart defect has a checkup appointment with surgeons at Johns Hopkins Hospital Saturday.

Steve Smejkal, 9, of Cedar Rapids, was given a diagnosis about a year ago. Now, Hopkins surgeons want to see how he's coming along and whether an operation is necessary.

The Kiwanis Club in his home town donated $1,000 to help finance the operation, if it is needed. It may cost as much as $3,500 in all. Steve's mother, Mrs. Louis Smejkal, is a widow.

Bird Dog Grows Own Camouflage

HARRISBURG, Ill. (AP)—A bird dog born here is growing green fur — and it's a natural camouflage.

John Jones, the owner, examined the week-old pup again Friday and said there's no doubt about it. Its color is green.

Jones said a doctor had told him an infection in the mother had caused the discoloration. The pup was one of seven.

The other pups are white.

Fit For Sale

OTTAWA (AP)—The tariff board by a 2-to-1 decision has decided that the novel "Peyton Place" is fit for sale in Canada.

Tavern Owner Finds Fortune Hidden In Wall

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—James Vambaketes is turning his tavern here into a sporting goods store, and the move already looks like a financial success.

Workmen battering down a wall found a huge stack of old $10 bills, estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000. They have been sent to a bank in St. Louis for examination.

Vambaketes said he didn't know how the bills might have ended up in his tavern, which was left to him by his father several years ago. He said he's certain his father didn't stash them away.

"They might have been dumped there by a bank robber for all I know," Vambaketes said.

Mended Heart Fails Girl, 7

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—After surgeons had mended a hole in Brenda Ikert's heart last November, she began to hope that some day she could be a dancer.

Last month, after long convalescence, she had strength enough to try on the little ballet costume that nurses kept hanging in her hospital room. For a 7-year-old, that was a big day.

The heart surgery followed a fund-raising campaign among friends and neighbors in Lisbon, Ohio, where she lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ikert.

Twice later, additional surgery was necessary. When it seemed she was much better, there would be a hidden infection to create a setback. But the slow progress continued, and she was to go home next Sunday.

Then suddenly a few days ago, she became worse. Late Thursday the repaired heart stopped.

On Sunday there will be funeral services in Lisbon.

Soviets Seek Summit Talks

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union offered Friday to join the West in swift preparations for a summit conference but demanded that the top-level meeting be held even if preliminary talks fail.

The Soviet attitude was set forth in notes to the United States, Britain and France, delivered by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. The notes were made public later.

The communications answered a joint Western declaration of March 31 which outlined terms for arranging and preparing summit talks.

Nervous Disorders Increase In Hungary

VIENNA (AP)—Hungarian newspapers are publishing official statistics showing nervous disorders are increasing in Hungary.

The paper Nepszava, received here, quoted a Budapest doctor as saying: "Occupational neuroses are caused by certain factors which are in a relation to work and the place of work. They occur especially if the nervous systems of workers are overburdened by certain (unnamed) circumstances."

Verdict Not Binding On Court Action

Sobbing Actress
Testifies Events
Leading To Slaying

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"He said he would kill me and my daughter and my mother," Lana Turner sobbed to a coroner's jury which later Friday decided her daughter's killing of Johnny Stompanato was justifiable.

The actress declared her last words to Stompanato were: "Don't ever touch me again! I'm absolutely finished. This is the end and I want you to get out!"

Then, the blonde star said, her daughter Cheryl slipped a kitchen knife into Stompanato's stomach "and I swear it was so fast I truthfully thought she had hit him in the stomach."

She added that in the argument preceding the stabbing Stompanato, while Cheryl was standing at the door, "came to me like he was going to strangle me."

Slaying Justified

After hearing more than an hour of her tremulous testimony, the jury of 10 men and two women decided 14-year-old Cheryl's slaying of her mother's lover was justifiable homicide.

The verdict is not binding on the courts, however. Cheryl, who has been at Juvenile Hall since the slaying last Friday night, will learn her future at a Juvenile Court hearing April 24. She could go free, be made a ward of the court, sent to a foster home, or placed in the custody of her mother or father. The latter is Stephen Crane, second of Miss Turner's four husbands.

Lana, in the first public account of the nightmarish scene in the pink-carpeted bedroom of her Beverly Hills home, took the stand at a jammed courtroom on the eighth floor of the Hall of Records.

Often choking with emotion, she told of her struggle to break off her romance with the handsome former underworld figure who had been her companion for months.

Letters the two wrote to each other, made public this week, were full of endearments and words of longing for each other. But Lana told of threats he made. The letters indicated their romance was cooling, that she questioned the wisdom of the association.

Threatened Her

Once in London, she said, he threatened to slash her face with a razor. And just before he was killed, she said, Stompanato threatened to "kill me and my daughter and my mother." Miss Turner gave this account of the violent quarrel that preceded the killing.

"I walked into my daughter's room and she was watching TV. I walked over to her and Mr. Stompanato was behind me all the time and saying some very bad things."

"The language was bad, swearing, and I turned to Mr. Stompanato. . . I said, 'I've told you I do not want to argue in front of the baby.' I've always called her that."

"I went downstairs with Mr. Stompanato following me, and the quarrel was now becoming more violent, and I answered back that I was just finding out too many lies."

The actress said she told him, "I can't go on like this. You know that I have begged, I've pleaded for you to leave me alone even with all your threats."

She added that he followed her to the bedroom and: "Mr. Stompanato grabbed me by the arms and began shaking me, cursing me very badly and saying that, as he had told me before, no matter what I did, how I tried to get away, he would never let me; that if he said jump, I would jump; if he said hop, I would hop, and I would have to do any and everything he told me, or he would kill me."

Radiation Protector May Carry Danger Of Cancer

By FRANK CAREY
Science Reporter

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A potentially life-saving protector against radiation from atomic bombs also may carry a slight risk of causing cancer, a government researcher claims.

Researcher Delta E. Uphoff of the National Cancer Institute said Friday this is suggested by experiments with mice in which it was shown that injections of bone marrow protected the mice from lethal doses of radiation but that some of them developed cancer.

She said that the cancer development was related to the combination of radiation exposure and administration of the bone marrow.

Miss Uphoff spoke to a reporter in amplifying a technical report that she and Dr. Lloyd W. Law, also of NCI, prepared for the annual meeting of the American Assn. for Cancer Research.

She said that while no extensive tests have been conducted regarding any protective effects of bone marrow against radiation in men, the following might be theorized from mice tests:

Over a period of 30 years, a small percentage of human beings given bone marrow might ultimately develop cancer.

In the meantime, however, these and any others given bone marrow would have been protected from death due to radiation.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Stiffness In Posture

Stiffness is something to avoid, not encourage. It has no part in either correct or graceful stance. In the first place, standing stiffly erect is uncomfortable. Secondly, tautness is so unnatural for the body that serious strains on the joints and ligaments ensue—strains that are difficult to overcome in later life. I realize you can't caution a child to "stand relaxed." "Relaxed" and "limp" mean the same to youngsters. Yet, relaxation is the keynote to perfect and beautiful carriage in its naturally correct position.

Even a child can recognize the difference between good posture and stiff posture, if you put him or her through these paces:

Line up the body with the weight on the balls of the feet, knees flexed, abdominal muscles pulled in and buttock muscles pulled down, waist retracted, chest held high, shoulders released to normal level and head poised skyward.

Try it yourself and you'll see that the front and back of your body are in balance, relieved of all strain.

If you have a sub-deb or deb in your family, first show her how it's done. Next, set her an example all the time. Last, when she slips, say, "stand natural." She'll develop into a posture beauty—and what is more important to her health, assurance and charm?

Bank Bandit Caught 2 Hours After Holdup

FOLLANSBEE, W. Va. — A 33-year-old ex-convict who robbed the Bank of Follansbee of $1,680 on the spur of the moment Friday was captured within an hour at an orphanage where he spent his childhood.

Brooke County authorities at Wellsburg identified the man as George Edward Gasser. They described him as a "drifter" whose last known address was Cleveland.

The sheriff's office said that Gasser related he had spent 15 years of his life in prison. He was quoted by authorities that he pulled the armed robbery of the bank on "the spur of the moment."

The robbery was the third at the bank in this Northern Panhandle steel community in the last 10 years.

Officers quoted Gasser that he was driving north on W. Va. 2 in a car he rented from a Wheeling agency when he decided to rob the bank because he was broke, unemployed and unable to get work.

The man went up to teller I. B. Farrell, who had been employed at the bank for about a year, told the employee to keep quiet and to hand over the money in the cash drawer. That was at about 2:55 p.m. EST.

Farrell reacted by handing over only part of the cash he was using to carry on the day's business. Police said that Gasser pulled forth a .22 caliber revolver and proceeded so quietly that other employees did not notice him.

In racing from the bank, however, the robber dropped a $5 on the street which was picked up by Patrolman Rudy Visco. That officer had only a few minutes earlier given Gasser's car a parking ticket.

Farrell ran outside the bank in time to see the thief enter a car and drive away. The bank employee was able to get the license number.

Because of a construction project on W. Va. 2 south of here, Gasser could drive only north on that road or over Hoover's Heights. It was in the latter section that officers caught up with him.

Patrolman Jack Schwerseger and Brooke County Deputy Dave Rees noticed the get-away car parked in the drive of an orphanage no more than three miles from the bank at about 4 p.m.

They found Gasser inside the home, and he surrendered without resistance. Schwerseger and Rees quoted the man that he had lived at the orphanage from the time he was 6 years of age until he was 18.

Officers filed no formal charge against Gasser immediately. They quoted him that he was en route to New York to seek employment on a steamship. He had seaman's papers in his possession.

Man And Wife Tippy Drivers

BALTIMORE — After a car zig-zagged down the street and hit another auto while parking, Patrolman Harry Thomas charged the woman driver with drunken driving.

Several hours later the same car crashed into another auto. Behind the wheel this time was the woman's husband. He also was charged with drunken driving.

Both were fined Friday in Magistrate's court.

Ludwig Sturmer, 35-year-old steelworker, was fined a total of $363 for operating under the influence of alcohol, reckless driving, operating without a license and failing to keep to the right. His 36-year-old wife Louise was given a 30-day suspended sentence and put on a year's probation for driving under the influence and fined $13.75 for driving with an out-of-state license.

School On Saturday

ARLINGTON, Va. — Arlington County schools will be open Saturday because of snow. But it's snow that fell in February and March.

The Saturday classes were ordered to help make up for time lost when schools were closed.

CONVICTED — Capt. Marvin E. Kemp of Kilmichael, Miss., was convicted in Seoul, Korea, yesterday of assaulting a 14-year-old Korean boy by a general courts-martial which fined Kemp $200 a month for six months. The boy was caught with stolen goods and was nailed in a packing crate and shipped 25 miles. (AP Photofax)

Cash Offers Roll In For Deposed Widow

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — Offers of cash and legal counsel poured in Friday for Mrs. Juanita Malin, 39, widowed mother of nine children who faces losing her $10,000 home over an unpaid grocery bill of $69.90.

Two other Evansville families reported the same Purdue University student who bought Mrs. Malin's home for $150 at a sheriff's auction obtained their houses in the same manner. The student's wife said she and her husband intended to collect rent from all three families.

More than a dozen neighbors volunteered to post money for returning the widow's three-bedroom suburban home. The Evansville Bar Assn. appointed a committee of lawyers to seek legal remedies for her.

Carl Mosby, the grocer whose bill started the legal landslide that swept away Mrs. Malin's house, said he had fired his lawyer because of the methods employed to settle the account. Earlier Mosby offered to give back the money he realized from the case "and maybe a little more" to help the widow.

Mrs. Malin's attorney, James Lopp, announced he would "appeal to the conscience" of Morris Esche, 30-year-old Purdue engineering student who bought the widow's house at a sheriff's auction Jan. 3, 1957.

Esche, who said he was willing to discuss the case, stated he was not aware of Mrs. Malin's circumstances and could not reach her despite repeated attempts before the story of her plight was made public Thursday.

It was learned Esche purchased two other houses at the same auction in which he bought the Malin home. He paid $80 for the $5,000 residence of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mills and $475 for a $3,500 house belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Orin Songer.

would cut my face or cripple me, and if it went beyond that he would kill me and my daughter and my mother. . .

Saw Her Daughter

Miss Turner said she broke away and saw her daughter standing at the bedroom door. She pleaded with the girl not to listen, but to go to her room.

"She looked at me I think as if to say, 'Are you sure, mother?' Lana said, 'Because I know that I repeated it and I begged her. . . I turned to Mr. Stompanato after I had closed the door and I said, 'That's just great, that my child had to hear all of that. You are horrible, and I can't go through any more.'"

She said that he went to a closet and took out a jacket and shirt of his, threatening her — "in a way that he was going to strangle me with it."

Then she spoke her last words to Stompanato, and Cheryl entered with a knife.

"As best I can remember, they came together and parted. I still never saw the blade. Mr. Stompanato grabbed himself here — in the abdomen. . . He started to all right."

M'Keldin Picks Two Democrats To State Posts

ANNAPOLIS, — Two former Democratic state legislators received two of three state appointments made Friday by Republican Gov. McKeldin.

Thomas F. Dempsey was named chief judge of Baltimore Traffic Court and Albert L. Sklar to the Public Service Commission.

Melvin L. Fine, a Republican, was appointed commissioner of labor and industry.

Dempsey, who had decided not to seek reelection as state senator from Baltimore's Third District, will serve out a term expiring next May. He succeeds Meyer M. Cardin, another Democrat, whom McKeldin promoted to chairman of a reorganized State Industrial Accident Commission in February.

Sklar, a delegate from Baltimore's Fourth District from 1939 to 1954, takes the place of Frank Harper on the Public Service Commission. The term of Harper, who died April 3, runs until next June.

Fine, who also is a former delegate and senator, will stay in office until McKeldin goes out on Jan. 1. He displaces Joseph F. Di Domenico who was a holdover appointee. Fine is a former chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

Dempsey had been a legislator since 1938 and it was reported during the 1958 session that he was in line for the chief traffic judge job. He had been considered an authority on jobless insurance laws. He belonged to the Coggins-O'Malley Democratic organization in the Third District which generally had been opposed to Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro.

In the announcement of his intention not to seek reelection to the State Senate, Dempsey said he wanted to devote full time to private law practice.

Sklar served as chairman of Gov. McKeldin's commission to recommend revision of Public Service Commission laws from 1951-55.

Sentence Satisfies

BALTIMORE — Joseph Robert Cather Jr., 31, was more than satisfied Friday with his sentence of six years in federal prison for interstate transportation of two forged checks.

Judge R. Dorsey Watkins asked Cather first what he felt the sentence should be. Cather said he deserved at least 10 years.

move forward and he made almost a half turn and then dropped on his back. . .

"His arms went out so that I still did not see that there was blood or a wound until I ran over to him and I saw that his sweater was cut, and I lifted the sweater up and I saw this wound. I remember only barely hearing my daughter sobbing, and I ran into my bathroom, which is very close, and I grabbed a towel. . .

"I didn't know what to do, and then I put the towel there and Mr. Stompanato was making very dreadful sounds in his throat of gasping, terrible sounds. . .

The scene was as dramatic as any that the actress has played on the screen. Unmindful of the spotlights and the dozens of cameras focused on her, she spoke her tale of horror, often breaking up as tears filled her eyes.

When a deputy district attorney showed her the kitchen knife with which Cheryl killed Stompanato, she gazed at it, then stared grimly to the side.

The actress confirmed what Beverly Hills Police Chief Clinton Anderson had already testified: that she tried to take the blame for the killing.

Anderson told her that was impossible.

Stephen Crane, father of Cheryl, testified that he received a hysterical phone call from his daughter on the night of the slaying while he dined at the cafe he owns. When he rushed to the Turner house and learned of the tragedy, he said Cheryl told him: "I did it, daddy, but I didn't mean to. He was going to hurt mommy."

Crane said that both the girl and her mother were hysterical. Cheryl kept asking, "He's — Stompanato — going to be all right, isn't he?"

Crane said he reassured his daughter, "But both Miss Turner and I knew he wasn't going to be all right."

Four Vacancies Now Exist In Marine Group

Vacancies for four new men now exist in the Sixth Infantry Company, USMC, Capt. Billy C. Menges, commanding officer, announced last night.

Captain Menges said that former Marines as well as new recruits are being accepted. Former Marines may be enlisted with the rank held at date of discharge or release from active duty.

Non prior service men between the ages of 17 through 26 may be enlisted in the six-month training program. This program offers six months of active duty and the remainder of the obligated service in the Ready Reserve with an opportunity to transfer to the Standby Reserve.

Persons enlisting in this program who are out of school may request immediate assignment to six months active duty.

The Marine Reserve unit drills on Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. Further information may be obtained by calling PARKVIEW 2-1404 any day from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Bruce, Long Call Harmony Slate 'Machine'

By The Associated Press

Two Senate candidates criticized the Tawes-D'Alesandro alliance in Maryland's Democratic primary Friday, saying Thursday's developments in Baltimore County prove it is unacceptable to the voters.

James Bruce, former diplomat who is one of Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro's six opponents in the senatorial race, said in a campaign headquarters statement that the alliance "has brought discord to the party instead of harmony."

Clarence D. Long, the other critic and Senate candidate, declared during a campaign stop in Worcester County that he has observed "a terrific reaction among the people against the machine trying to push D'Alesandro down their throats."

Bruce and Long referred to the failure of D'Alesandro to win the endorsement of the party's dominant faction in Baltimore County. That group, headed by County Executive Michael J. Birmingham, went on record Thursday in favor of George P. Mahoney for the senatorial nomination.

Leader Follows

Birmingham was the chief architect of the "harmony" plan under which D'Alesandro withdrew from the gubernatorial primary against J. Millard Tawes and decided to run for the Senate on Tawes' ticket. Birmingham's followers refused to go along with their leader, so he decided to follow them by admitting he was forced to back Mahoney, too.

Besides Tawes and D'Alesandro, the "harmony" slate includes Atty. Gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert for renomination and Louis L. Goldstein for comptroller. Birmingham, while announcing he would support Mahoney "locally," said he, like his rebellious faction, will back the other harmony candidates.

D'Alesandro shrugged off the Baltimore County developments with, "That's politics," and accompanied the rest of the harmony slate into Anne Arundel County Friday.

The county tour wound up with a televised dinner-rally at the Earleigh Heights Volunteer Fire Dept. Hall, but the mayor had to leave before the TV show so he could attend a hometown dinner honoring Wilmer A. Dehuff, retiring principal of Baltimore Polytechnic Institute.

Other candidates making television appearances included Mahoney and Andrew J. Easter.

Backs Kennedy Plan

Earlier in the day, Mahoney's headquarters staff issued a statement putting him on record in favor of the unemployment pay extension proposed by Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass.). It calls for extending jobless pay benefits from 26 weeks to 39.

A similar statement from Bruce headquarters criticized the formation of the harmony ticket last January in these words:

"When the Democratic political goose laid the harmony egg last January, I predicted that the

West Virginia High Court Throws Out Fair Trade Act

CHARLESTON, — West Virginia's 21-year-old Fair Trade Act was declared unconstitutional in a 4-1 decision by the State Supreme Court Friday.

The decision came in a Kanawha County case. General Electric Co. had sought to stop A. Dandy Appliance Co. of Charleston from selling GE appliances below minimum prices set forth in fair trade agreements between GE and dealers, even though Dandy was not a signer of any such agreement.

The 1937 act made it a violation of law for even a non-signer to sell trade-marked items below minimum prices in fair trade agreements.

The Supreme Court said the act, in so doing, was "unconstitutional and void as an arbitrary and unreasonable exercise of the police power because of having no substantial relation to the public health, safety or general welfare."

The majority opinion by Judge H. L. Ducker also held the act unconstitutional on two other counts, namely:

(1) That it represented an invasion of property rights without due process of law.

(2) That the non-signer provision went beyond the purposes of the act as expressed in the title.

Judge Leslie E. Given dissented and reserved the right to file a dissenting opinion.

The decision was one of three handed down by the court late Friday afternoon. The judges then adjourned until April 22.

GE was one of the leaders in merchandising under fair trade acts in various states. As a result of court decisions in other states, similar to the one handed down here Friday, GE now has largely abandoned efforts to hold the line on fair trade pricing.

The decision upheld in part and reversed in part rulings by Kanawha County Circuit Court, which certified its decision to the appellate judges for review.

The circuit court had held the non-signer provision unconstitutional on the ground that it exceeded the scope of the act as expressed in the title, but upheld the act on other grounds, on which Dandy attacked its validity.

The non-signer provision alone also was held invalid in a decision by Judge Ben Moore of Charleston in a case in U. S. Southern District Court. That case involved GE and a Fayette County appliance dealer.

The Supreme Court cited the principle that legislation exercising the police power of the state "must be within the constitutional inhibitions." Judge Ducker wrote that the property rights of owners of trademarks and brand names "should be protected to such extent as may be compatible with the constitutional rights of the public."

Area Electrical Unions To Hold Session Here

The West Virginia State Electrical Workers Association will hold a district meeting here tomorrow.

The session will open with a luncheon meeting in the Fort Cumberland Hotel and will be attended by delegates from about 20 Electrical Workers locals.

Local arrangements for the session are being completed by Cumberland Local 307, which is affiliated with the area organization.

The delegates will represent local unions in all major West Virginia cities, Marietta, Ohio, and Roanoke and Front Royal, Va., according to George W. Lucas, business agent of Local 307.

The major business will be reports from delegates on conditions in their jurisdictions.

Representing the IBEW will be C. McMillan, Cincinnati, a member of the international's executive board.

It will be the first time the association has met here.

Youths Face Assault Charge

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. — State's Atty. Blair H. Smith of Prince Georges County says he would jail every youth who was connected with Tuesday's teenage gang fight in which one boy was wounded by a shotgun blast.

He recommended that the youths be sent to a training school "to jar them into realization that they can't get away with this sort of thing."

Judge Emmet H. Nann of Juvenile Court Thursday ordered George Doonis, 17, of Capitol Heights, Md., turned over to authorities for prosecution in regular court.

Doonis, who has a juvenile record, is charged with intent to kill and with simple assault. He has denied firing the charge which wounded Donald Schlosser, 17, in the leg.

A 16-year-old boy has been charged with disorderly conduct. About 10 others were turned over to their parents for discipline.

The incident occurred at Parkland.

thing that would emerge from the shell would be a weak and gangling creature, unable to stand on its own two feet.

"Today that prediction has come true. The unfortunate Tawes-D'Alesandro alliance has brought discord to the party instead of harmony and the threat of defeat to all Democratic candidates next November. . .

"Michael J. Birmingham, Maryland's Democratic national committeeman and former leader of the Democratic party in Baltimore County, engineered the deal. Whether he was sincere in his pledge to D'Alesandro, only he knows."

Mentioning the Baltimore County endorsement of Mahoney, Bruce added:

"What happened to D'Alesandro in Baltimore. . . is happening to him in the other 22 counties of Maryland. The men who participated in the 'sellout' cannot deliver their home counties to D'Alesandro, any more than Birmingham could deliver his."

Long said on his Eastern Shore tour that the Baltimore County action proved that the people of Maryland "are slowly watching the myth of 'unity' crumble before their eyes."

A Scientific Lag On Our Doorstep

Man has made such tremendous advances in certain areas of endeavor, particularly nuclear fission, medicine and now outer space, it is inexplicable that he has not yet learned how to desalt water—at least at a commercially practicable rate.

There are several plants in the United States where ocean water is being converted into potable water, but not one can approach the low cost of supplying fresh water.

Such an apparent paradox in man's scientific abilities might be laughable were it not for the dangers inherent in this particular failure. The United States is more fortunate than most nations of the world in generally having an abundance of fresh water available for most emergencies.

Long, hot summer months, however, take their toll of this abundance and each year—as the population increases and industrial demands grow enormously—more communities face the problems of a water shortage.

At the present time, one thousand towns and cities in the United States are forced to conserve water supplies during summer months because of an inadequate supply. It is not uncommon for drought-hit areas to find water resources exhausted. During a drought in Dallas, Texas, early in 1957, bottled water sold for 50 cents a gallon.

Rapidly-increasing population and greater demands for water have focused attention anew on the age-old problem of converting the limitless expanses of ocean into drinkable water. Within the past year many new devices for accomplishing this feat have been developed and more are on the drawing boards. But so far not one can be termed a commercial success.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky
Getting More Mixed Up

Elliott V. Bell, editor and publisher of "Business Week," is an established economist who specializes in finance. He has the unusual distinction among experts that he has done as he has preached, which means that he seems to be successful in life, something that most financial writers are not, they continuing to give advice to all the world but taking not even their own for themselves.

In addition, Elliott Bell has had quite a public career, being for many years the principal economic adviser to Thomas E. Dewey when he was Governor of New York State. He was also the State Superintendent of Banks, an important position, rarely held by a man of such financial ability and knowledge.

Therefore, it is only natural that Elliott Bell should have something to say about the current depression: "... Neither the President nor any one else is commander in chief of our economic defenses. We have a vast multiplicity of government intermediaries engaged in credit operations affecting the general economy—wholly without coordination. We have a diversity of private institutions engaged in major financial operations—entirely outside the discipline affecting the commercial banking system and in some cases—entirely without any discipline, even taxation."

This, of course, is a correct picture of the development of financial institutions and operations among a free people. It is characteristic of the competitive system that too many legal restrictions destroy competition and lead to government controls. Elliott Bell comes up with the idea:

"... Simple common sense indicates we ought at least to have some authority in government that would be responsible for thinking in terms of overall economic policy."

It is characteristic of our people that whenever times become troubled we think of dictators. For instance, there was the NRA and the OPA and a whole slew of such organizations. Rent controls did prevent landlords somewhat from robbing their tenants during housing shortages, but it also produced a shortage of housing which has not yet been corrected and public housing has barely scratched the surface of our needs. On the other hand, had there been free competition, the likelihood is that slum clearance would have been as swift as the conversion of Park Avenue into an office building canyon has been.

We really face the same problem here that faces us concerning the reorganization of our Defense Department, namely, even if there are experts, is it safe, in a free society, to entrust great powers to few men or to a single individual, not elected by the people, not subject to control by Congress? How long can we remain free under such conditions?

Economics can be simple and can be complex. Everybody practises economics. When you buy a newspaper, take a ride on a bus, buy something on the installment plan or for cash, put money in the bank, write a check, do anything about buying, selling, spending, saving, taking wages, investing money, and so on, you are engaged in an economic activity. And the likelihood is you know what you are doing. Levittown, for instance, was not built by a theoretical economist, nor was Rockefeller Center. These are business enterprises, involving entrepreneurs, banks, insurance companies, contractors, engineers, architects, labor unions, etc. Each one is trying to make some money out of the deal. Meanwhile the buildings go up; wealth has been created; jobs are made available; our competitive society moves on.

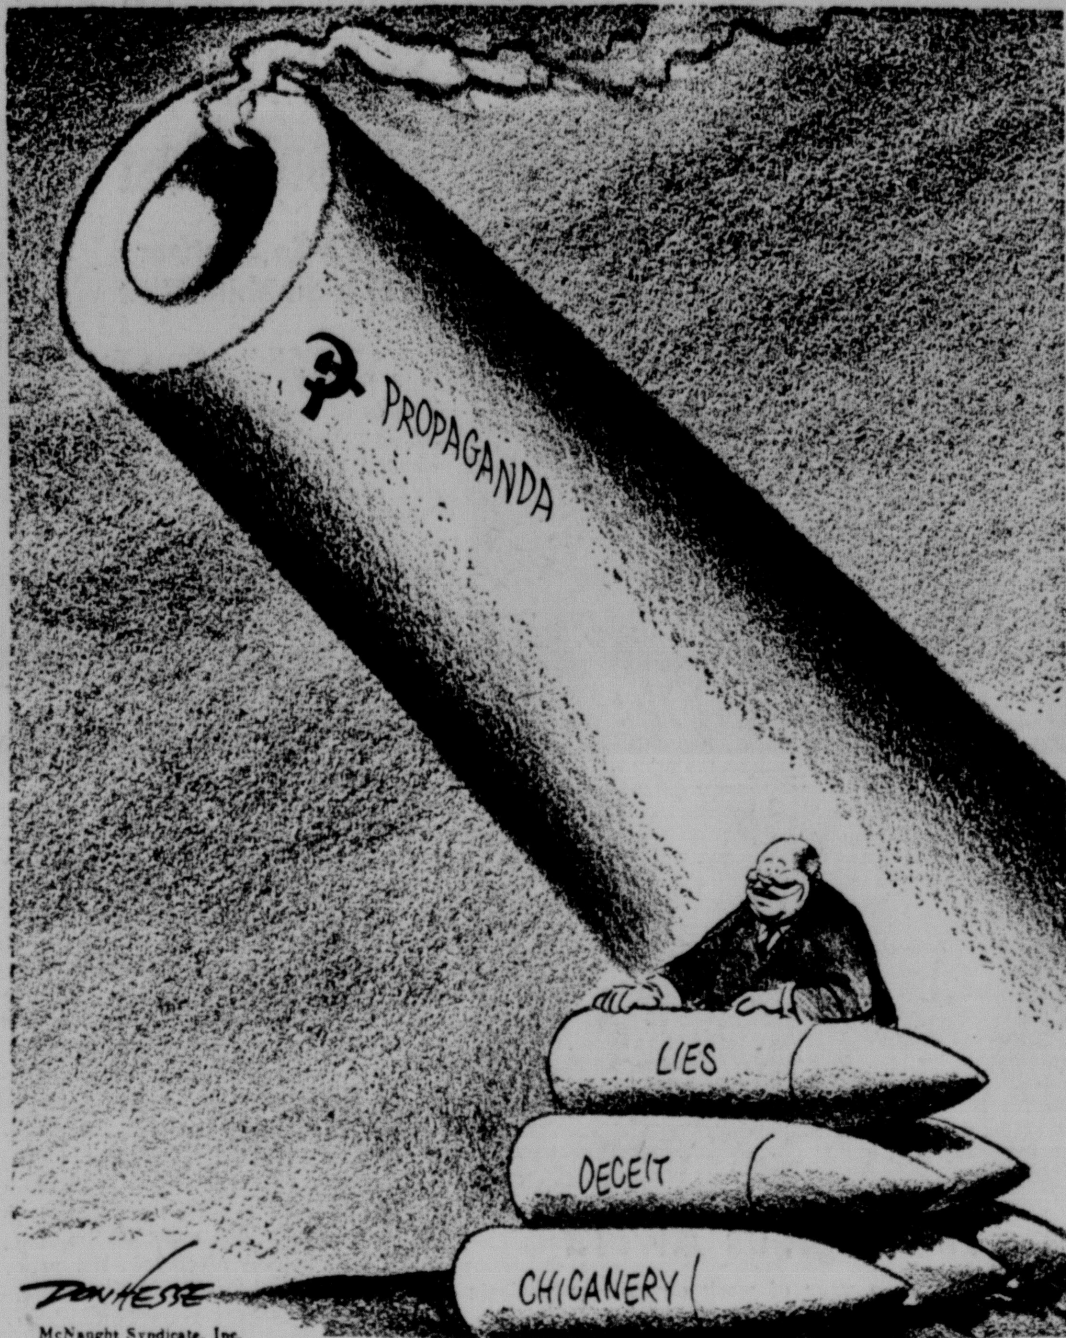

In the Soviet system, such free action is forbidden. The government and party determine what is to be done and practically that means that all questions become subject to political policy. Shall we build a house or make a rocket? Shall we clear a slum in Moscow or invest in the improvement of China?

The essence in any proposal for economic dictatorship is that Congress should clothe the President with authority to do what he constitutionally is forbidden to do. That is why the Supreme Court was forced to throw the NRA into the discard. It was unconstitutional.

To a degree, but not altogether, the present depression was triggered by excessive credit controls in an economy in which the credit system has become normalized to a degree that without its free flow, business must stop. What we need to fear more than inflation is the socialization of our economic process by dictatorship.

It's The Ammunition — Not The Gun

Casual Ike Remark Expresses Great Truism

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON.—Sometimes a casual remark expresses a great truism. It has more meaning than ponderous and lengthy pronouncements. Such a bit of wisdom of profound significance came from the lips of President Eisenhower in an extemporaneous address on Wednesday to a visiting group from abroad when he said:

"I have tried to talk a great deal in this country about people and people meeting people. I think governments are far more stupid than are their peoples. If we could get the peoples talking to each other, living with each other, visiting in homes, going to schools together, I am perfectly certain that most of the world's troubles would be over. And we could use all of the great inventions of science to human betterment and improvement rather than in the attempt to destroy ourselves."

The dictionary defines "stupidity" as a "lack of understanding" or perception. Why does the president say that "governments are far more stupid than are their peoples"? If he is thinking about western democracies—and he might well be—then undoubtedly he is referring to the evils of modern politics which infect Congress here and parliaments abroad. For the fallacy is cherished by politicians that the people just don't understand vital issues and will vote for the candidate who resorts to demagoguery. This has rarely proved true in elections, though there are some exceptional cases where a guitar-playing crooner widely popular in a state or district has won the race over someone less spectacular.

The outpouring of propaganda from politicians' offices and some vitriolic speeches printed in the "Congressional Record" indicate that a few very aggressive political personalities still believe it is possible to fool the people by smears and sneers.

Men of this type are not easily removed from political office, as the opposing candidate often is not skillful enough to do battle effectively against them. But history shows that the demagogue has relatively little influence in shaping public policy. To the extent that the public anywhere tolerates men of "stupidity" in Congress or parliaments, there can be no doubt that democracies in the western world suffer somewhat from such inadequacies.

But the President undoubtedly had in mind the stupidity of the autocratic governments which today assume they can indefinitely maintain a complete mastery over the people. Mussolini and Hitler carried on their governments with a stupidity that brought tragedy to the world in the form of a global war. Khrushchev and his cohorts in Moscow now are engaged in applying the same formula of stupidity — they underestimate the intelligence of the people. It is precisely because the dictators are afraid of free communication that they deprive their people of liberty of expression.

Thus the Communist regime does not permit free access by

Securities And Exchange Commission Has Inferior Quarters In Washington

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—There are two interesting buildings in Washington, both dealing with the financial arteries of the USA, which contrast strangely in architecture, personnel and activity.

One is the beautiful marble mausoleum built for the Federal Reserve Board on Constitution Avenue. Here bank presidents from all over the USA meet to consult on the economics of the nation. An air of discreet conservatism pervades its halls.

It was in this building that the Federal Reserve Board, with some members dissenting, decided to tighten up interest rates last year, which in the opinion of many economists brought on the present recession.

In a completely different part of town, on Second and D Streets, located in a "Tempo," is the Securities and Exchange Commission. A Tempo is a temporary building built during the war supposedly to be torn down after the war. But in this makeshift building, which in the summer-time is the hottest place in Washington, an understaffed, overworked commission passes on the stock and bond issues which mean hundreds of millions to the American public.

Wall Street lawyers leave their comfortable office suites in New York at 8 a. m., fly to Washington, appear before the SEC and catch the 5 p.m. plane back to Manhattan. They bring with them to the Nation's Capital their overpaid, overstaffed publicity men.

Matching wits against them to protect American stockholders is an SEC staff, cut down to the most miserly budget in history. Yet this is a time when the SEC must pass on more stock issues than ever before; is engaged in more proxy fights than ever before in history.

The SEC, written into law by Sam Rayburn under Roosevelt, used to boast such outstanding public officials as Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas; the late Jerome Frank of the Court of Appeals; Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to England; Leon Henderson, former head of OPA; and Justice Ferdinand Pecora of the New York Supreme Court. Now it is the stepchild of the Eisenhower administration. One of the best ways to kill an agency is to starve it to death.

Note—Ten million families now own stocks. All of them are dependent in one way or another on the SEC as the government watchdog for clean securities.

Washington Low-Downs

Vic Cramer, onetime ace trust buster of the Justice Department, is going to clam up when he testifies before Congressman Celler's trust-busting committee on the telephone monopoly. Cramer knows where the bodies are buried in the fixing of the telephone consent decree, but isn't going to cooperate with Congress....

The grand jury probing the Federal Communications Commission and the Mack case is weak. Some of the jurors don't understand what it's all about. They will do what the District Attorney wants them to do. Probable result: No prosecutions....

The Harlem Globetrotters, who patriotically went with me to North Africa to entertain U.S. troops last Christmas, will stage a big game at the University of Maryland next week with the College All-Stars. Attorney General Bill Rogers will open the game by tossing up the ball....

The FCC has delayed four months in blessing the sale of the Kansas City Star's TV and radio stations. Usually this is automatic. Maybe the FCC is being careful for a change.

Earthquakes And Baths
Bill O'Dwyer, Manhattan's famous ex-mayor and former Ambassador to Mexico, was taking a shower in the Gresham Hotel in Dublin when the Associated Press came to tell him that his office building in Mexico City had fallen over at 2:30 a. m.

"Anyone hurt?" asked O'Dwyer.

"No," replied the AP. "What are you going to do?"
"I'm going back to finish my shower."

Backstage In New York

Democrats usually start battling between themselves when victory seems just around the corner and that's what they're doing in New York right now. Result could be Nelson Rockefeller, Republican, as Governor

The conservative wing of the Democratic party (sometimes called the Irish wing) wants Big Jim Farley to run for the Senate. This has brought howls of opposition from the Liberal party which holds the balance of power, also from Roosevelt Democrats. Both remember how Big Jim knifed FDR in his latter years. Conservative Democrats are willing to compromise—maybe—with Frank Hogan, the District Attorney, or Tom Murray, former Atomic Energy Commissioner. But they don't want Tom Finletter, former Air Force Secretary.

As a result Dave Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies Garment Workers and moving spirit in the Liberal party, has thrown down the gauntlet. He has dropped private threats that if the Democrats don't nominate a Liberal, he will swing the Liberal party over to Nelson Rockefeller for Governor, thereby undercutting Gov. Averell Harriman.

There's an interesting bond between Dubinsky and Rockefeller. Dubinsky's friend and adviser for years has been Mrs. Anne Rosenberg, former Assistant Secretary of Defense. The Rockefeller family's labor adviser for many years has been the same Mrs. Anna Rosenberg. She is not averse to a marriage between Nelson Rockefeller, Republican candidate for governor, and the Liberal party.

Futuristic

By Brother Barnabas

What the future holds for anybody, or everybody or anything on this planet is anybody's guess. The future alone can tell.

In this age of flux when nothing is certain but death and taxes, thoughtful men are wondering what next: when will the recession end; will there be another world war and if so when; when will the world itself come to an end and the heavens be rolled up as a scroll.

What the future of mankind is to be is a burning question and we are all involved in it.

The past is the womb of the future. No chrysalis, no butterfly. Whence man came foretells whither he goeth.

Of the origin of man Genesis has this to say: "The Lord God formed man of the slime of the earth (2:7, D.V.) and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living being (2:8, R. S. V.)."

Science says that man began with a speck of viable protoplasm emerging from a pit of primordial ooze, that he ascended the scale of development through vast eons till by the law of the survival of the fittest he has reached the pinnacle of his development.

Armageddon

Now with space explorations and anti-missile missiles coming on will man develop his own Frankenstein, or come to an Armageddon where the issue will be fought out between the amoeba and God?

When Florence Nightingale went to Scutari to relieve the intolerable conditions among the slaughter of the Crimean war, the sick and dying did not say "There comes a beautiful amoeba," but they must have thought when God made that Angel of Mercy he didn't do anything else that day but sit around and feel good.

Behaviourism, a mechanistic interpretation of man and mind, had quite a run when written about by J. B. Watson back in 1913 and 1915.

Why Were We Born?

Why do we behave like humans? Why were we born? Why was I not born somebody else? Why did I land in this garden spot and not in Fuzzy-wuzzy land? Where was God when it happened?

Would it have been money in my pocket if I had never been born?

It must have been in one of God's lighter or self-forgotten moments that he created men to resemble monkeys, or that he had a sense of humor when he made men who are jokes.

Why did we go to church last Easter and won't return till Easter 1959?

Why did one man become a priest, a preacher or a rabbi, and another a lawyer, politician or undertaker?

A preacher is an uplifter. An undertaker will let you down.

In a small town out west there lived an undertaker with a furniture store annex. At his death the father-in-law of the preacher wanted to take over the business and present it to his new son-in-law who he thought might have mentality enough to be a mortician, but not enough to be a howling success as a pulpiter.

Unless a vicar is an irremovable rector he is a peripatetic trouble shooter. The undertaker is a permanent fixture.

The two are complementary. The one preaches to the quick and the dead, the other carries them out.

An Embarrassing Situation

One undertaker is enough for a congregation. Two or more in the same church complicate matters.

The solution would be for them to unite in one firm, or both to belong to the official board, with one taking the affirmative side of every question and the other the negative.

A supply preacher was conducting a funeral in a small country church. He arrived late and the casket was closed.

Coming to the place in his remarks where he needed to know the sex of the deceased, he leaned forward to the mortician on the front seat and whispered "He or She?" He replied, "No, cousin."

Obviously your future and that of your son cannot be the same. The world and everything in it has changed. Your future is past, his is to come.

Your decisions were simple and fundamental. His are complex and multiple. With you it was to smoke or not to smoke. With him it is to decide which of the many brands of cigarets, if any, he should smoke since all claim to be least poisonous.

Prepare for the future beginning today. Our todays and our yesterdays are the blocks with which we build, echoes.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Stiffness In Posture

Stiffness is something to avoid, not encourage. It has no part in either correct or graceful stance.

In the first place, standing stiffly erect is uncomfortable. Secondly, tautness is so unnatural for the body that serious strains on the joints and ligaments ensue—strains that are difficult to overcome in later life.

I realize you can't caution a child to "stand relaxed." "Relaxed" and "limp" mean the same to youngsters. Yet, relaxation is the keynote to perfect and beautiful carriage in its naturally correct position.

Even a child can recognize the difference between good posture and stiff posture. If you put him or her through these poses:

Line up the body with the weight on the balls of the feet, knees flexed, abdominal muscles pulled in and buttock muscles pulled down, waist retracted, chest held high, shoulders released to normal level and head poised skyward.

Try it yourself and you'll see that the front and back of your body are in balance, relieved of all strain.

If you have a sub-deb or deb in your family, first show her how it's done. Next, set her an example all the time. Last, when she slips, say, "stand natural." She'll develop into a posture beauty—and what is more important to her health, assurance and charm?

Whitt was only one shot ahead of five rivals, Canadians Jerry Magee and Al Balding, Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn., Johnny Pott of Shreveport, La., and Gene Bone of Detroit.

Another shot back at 69, two behind the leader, came five more professionals, Bob Keller, former Army Air Force pilot from Eglon Field, Fla.; Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia; Chuck Alexander of nearby High Point and two promising California youngsters, Tony Lema of Napa and John McMullin of Fair Oaks.

Eleven men shot one under par 70s, among them Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., six time winner here. In all, 22 men in the field of 130 broke par and 12 equalled it.

MILWAUKEE BRAVES

The Milwaukee Braves should repeat as National League champions in 1958.

Unless the world champs grow too complacent or suffer a sharp reversal of form, they appear to have the talent to win another rugged battle for the top prize.

A glance at the Milwaukee roster reveals:

CATCHING — Very good if Del Crandall's sore elbow heals. Del Rice and Carl Sawatski are top light reserves.

PITCHING — Talented and deep. Addition of Bob Rush, Don Kaiser and Dick Littlefield should help. Braves have Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette, Bob Buhl, Bob Trowbridge, Gene Conley, Ernie Johnson, Joey Jay, Carlton Willey and Don McMahon.

INFIELD — Packs sock. Joe Adcock (1b), Red Schoendienst (2b), Johnny Logan (s.s.) and Ed Matthews (3b) is the first line and Frank Torre (1b) and Felix Mantilla are the top reserves.

OUTFIELD — Strong even without Bill Bruton. Much punch in Hank Aaron, Wes Covington, Bob Hazle and Andy Pafo.

Consensus: First Place.

THE LAVALE MAROONS AND ORIOLES OF THE PEN-MAR LEAGUE will hold practice sessions today at Parkside Field.

Candidates who never have played Little League ball before will practice at 10 a. m., while holdovers from last year's teams will drill at 1 p. m.

Pen-Mar Will Ban Pitchers Who Hurl In Other Leagues

Pitchers under contract to teams in the Pen-Mar Baseball League will be banned from hurling in any other organized or unorganized league during the 1958 season, it was decreed at a meeting of the eight-circuit circuit last night at Melody Manor, Barreville.

If a player under contract in the Pen-Mar pitches in violation of this rule and appears in a Pen-Mar League contest the game will be forfeited and the player will be suspended for the balance of the season.

This amendment to the Pen-Mar League by-laws was approved last night in a move to curb the practice of pitchers performing in the Twilight League and then not being able to give their best in Pen-Mar contests on Saturdays and Sundays.

The Pen-Mar League will open its season Sunday, April 27. Seven of the teams that were in the circuit last year have retained their franchises. Salisbury, Pa., will replace the Centerville, Pa., Reds.

Busso Winner On TKO In 9th

Larry Boardman Floored 7 Times

BOSTON (AP)—Johnny Busso floored Larry Boardman with a powerful left hand shot at the end of the ninth round Friday night for a technical knockout in their furious battle at Mechanics Building.

Busso knocked down his Marlborough, Conn., opponent seven times. Both fighters weighed 140½.

Busso, making his first ring appearance since his discharge from the Army, had been taking punishment from Boardman after he almost wrapped up the bout in the opening seconds.

But in the ninth, the New York caught Boardman with a left hook as Larry was coming in. The force of the blow knocked Boardman to the canvas.

Referee Tommy Rawson stepped in to call a halt as the bell sounded and it was recorded as a TKO at 2:39.

There were eight knockdowns in the bout which marked the first time Boardman had been stopped and the 15th time Busso had won without going the distance.

Alumni To Test Terp Gridders

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The first University of Maryland football team that Coach Tommy Mont might consider his own goes on public display Saturday afternoon.

The squad which he will show off in the annual spring game with the alumni is largely of Mont's own selection and development.

In his first two years as head coach, Mont worked mostly with players left over or already picked as freshman prospects by Jim Tatum.

"We've got depth and speed for the first time in the last two years," Mont says.

While eight starters from last year's first team and several other varsity letter winners will form the nucleus of Maryland's 1958 edition, Mont is looking for a lot of push from sophomores.

MIRACLES

Blossoms prove that winter has given place to spring; fruit, vegetables and grain prove that harvest is at hand—all are miracles. We see them so often we take them for granted, and we forget there are other miracles, just as beautiful, just as significant, just as unending.

The Church, bringing human lives into contact with God, produces miracles every day. Rough, actually evil people become powers for good. As winter changes into spring, so cold, barren nature blossoms and brings forth good fruit.

God depends on our help to cultivate the soil and care for the seed. Similarly, He looks to us to help bring the message of the Church, the message of salvation to others. He invites each of us to become part of His great miracle-working program.

Why not begin NOW? Become a part of the Church and its great work. Your own life will be enriched, your happiness increased, because you are a partner in performing miracles.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL...
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

A Scientific Lag On Our Doorstep

Man has made such tremendous advances in certain areas of endeavor, particularly nuclear fission, medicine and now outer space, it is inexplicable that he has not yet learned how to desalt water—at least at a commercially practicable rate.

There are several plants in the United States where ocean water is being converted into potable water, but not one can approach the low cost of supplying fresh water.

Such an apparent paradox in man's scientific abilities might be laughable were it not for the dangers inherent in this particular failure. The United States is more fortunate than most nations of the world in generally having an abundance of fresh water available for most emergencies.

Long, hot summer months, however, take their toll of this abundance and each year—as the population increases and industrial demands grow enormously—more communities face the problems of a water shortage.

At the present time, one thousand towns and cities in the United States are forced to conserve water supplies during summer months because of an inadequate supply. It is not uncommon for drought-hit areas to find water resources exhausted. During a drought in Dallas, Texas, early in 1957, bottled water sold for 50 cents a gallon.

Rapidly-increasing population and greater demands for water have focused attention anew on the age-old problem of converting the limitless expanses of ocean into drinkable water. Within the past year many new devices for accomplishing this feat have been developed and more are on the drawing boards. But so far not one can be termed a commercial success.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Getting More Mixed Up

Elliott V. Bell, editor and publisher of "Business Week," is an established economist who specializes in finance. He has the unusual distinction among experts that he has done as he has preached, which means that he seems to be successful in life, something that most financial writers are not, they continue to give advice to all the world but taking not even their own for themselves.

In addition, Elliott Bell has had quite a public career, being for many years the principal economic adviser to Thomas E. Dewey when he was Governor of New York State. He was also the State Superintendent of Banks, an important position, rarely held by a man of such financial ability and knowledge.

Therefore, it is only natural that Elliott Bell should have something to say about the current depression: "... Neither the President nor any one else is commander in chief of our economic defenses. We have a vast multiplicity of government intermediaries engaged in credit operations affecting the general economy—wholly without coordination. We have a diversity of private institutions engaged in major financial operations—entirely outside the discipline affecting the commercial banking system and in some cases—entirely without any discipline, even taxation."

This, of course, is a correct picture of the development of financial institutions and operations among a free people. It is characteristic of the competitive system that too many legal restrictions destroy competition and lead to government controls. Elliott Bell comes up with the idea:

"... Simple common sense indicates we ought at least to have some authority in government that would be responsible for thinking in terms of overall economic policy."

It is characteristic of our people that whenever times become troubled we think of dictators. For instance, there was the NRA and the OPA and a whole slew of such organizations. Rent controls did prevent landlords somewhat from robbing their tenants during housing shortages, but it also produced a shortage of housing which has not yet been corrected and public housing has barely scratched the surface of our needs. On the other hand, had there been free competition, the likelihood is that slum clearance would have been as swift as the conversion of Park Avenue into an office building canyon has been.

We really face the same problem here that faces us concerning the reorganization of our Defense Department, namely, even if there are experts, is it safe, in a free society, to entrust great powers to few men or to a single individual, not elected by the people, not subject to control by Congress? How long can we remain free under such conditions?

Economics can be simple and can be complex. Everybody practises economics. When you buy a newspaper, take a ride on a bus, buy something on the installment plan or for cash, put money in the bank, write a check, do anything about buying, selling, spending, saving, taking wages, investing money, and so on, you are engaged in an economic activity. And the likelihood is you know what you are doing. Levittown, for instance, was not built by a theoretical economist, nor was Rockefeller Center. These are business enterprises, involving entrepreneurs, banks, insurance companies, contractors, engineers, architects, labor unions, etc. Each one is trying to make some money out of the deal. Meanwhile the buildings go up; wealth has been created; jobs are made available; our competitive society moves on.

In the Soviet system, such free action is forbidden. The government and party determine what is to be done and practically that means that all questions become subject to political policy. Shall we build a house or make a rocket? Shall we clear a slum in Moscow or invest in the improvement of China?

The essence in any proposal for economic dictatorship is that Congress should clothe the President with authority to do what he constitutionally is forbidden to do. That is why the Supreme Court was forced to throw the NRA into the discard. It was unconstitutional.

To a degree, but not altogether, the present depression was triggered by excessive credit controls in an economy in which the credit system has become normalized to a degree that without its free flow, business must stop. What we need to fear more than inflation is the socialization of our economic process by dictatorship.

It's The Ammunition — Not The Gun

Casual Ike Remark Expresses Great Truism

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON.—Sometimes a casual remark expresses a great truism. It has more meaning than ponderous and lengthy pronouncements. Such a bit of wisdom of profound significance came from the lips of President Eisenhower in an extemporaneous address on Wednesday to a visiting group from abroad when he said:

"I have tried to talk a great deal in this country about people and people meeting people. I think governments are far more stupid than are their peoples. If we could get the peoples talking to each other, living with each other, visiting in homes, going to schools together, I am perfectly certain that most of the world's troubles would be over. And we could use all of the great inventions of science to human betterment and improvement rather than in the attempt to destroy ourselves."

The dictionary defines "stupidity" as a "lack of understanding" or perception. Why does the president say that "governments are far more stupid than are their peoples"? If he is thinking about western democracies—and he might well be—then undoubtedly he is referring to the evils of modern politics which infect Congress here and parliaments abroad. For the fallacy is cherished by politicians that the people just don't understand vital issues and will vote for the candidate who resorts to demagoguery. This has rarely proved true in elections, though there are some exceptional cases where a guitar-playing crooner widely popular in a state or district has won the race over someone less spectacular.

The outpouring of propaganda from politicians' offices and some vitriolic speeches printed in the "Congressional Record" indicate that a few very aggressive political personalities still believe it is possible to fool the people by smears and sneers.

Men of this type are not easily removed from political office, as the opposing candidate often is not skillful enough to do battle effectively against them. But history shows that the demagogue has relatively little influence in shaping public policy. To the extent that the public anywhere tolerates men of "stupidity" in Congress or parliaments, there can be no doubt that democracies in the western world suffer somewhat from such inadequacies.

But the President undoubtedly had in mind the stupidity of the autocratic governments which today assume they can indefinitely maintain a complete mastery over the people. Mussolini and Hitler carried on their governments with a stupidity that brought tragedy to the world in the form of a global war. Khrushchev and his cohorts in Moscow now are engaged in applying the same formula of stupidity—they underestimate the intelligence of the people. It is precisely because the dictators are afraid of free communication that they deprive their people of liberty of expression.

Thus the Communist regime does not permit free access by the American people to the peoples behind the Iron Curtain. America, for instance, lets the Soviet ambassador roam around this country making speeches and appearing on television, but the American ambassador in Moscow has no such reciprocal privilege. America permits newspapermen generally to come to Washington from the Iron Curtain countries, but the Soviet government picks and chooses whom it will admit and confines the selection to a small number. It is a fact that the Soviet and Chinese empires are the only important areas of the world where wartime censorship still exist.

Mr. Eisenhower is right that there are governments in the world which are more stupid than their peoples. He might also have said that there are governments which are truly afraid of their own peoples and keep them under the tyrannical control of a personally operated police force. In this respect the world sees little difference today between the dictatorships of Hitler and Mussolini and that of Khrushchev although the latter, by a more adroit use of the air waves and the help of a world-wide apparatus of Communist agents, does manage to carry on campaigns of deception.

The days of every dictatorship, however, are numbered. The time will come when the peoples behind the Iron Curtain will manifest their interest in other peoples, just as Mr. Eisenhower describes it, and will demand the kind of government that will truly represent them—a government that will remove the tensions that today are threatening another world war.

TRY BIFOCALS

S. I. L. writes: Does it injure the eyes to go about in reading glasses that fuzz up all but near objects? REPLY

No, but why torture yourself? Get bifocals and you can have your cake and eat it too.

C. M. writes: Can a person be immunized to horses? I love to go riding but start to wheeze as soon as I enter the stable. REPLY

Yes, but not if you are going to expose yourself to horse dander once or twice a week. Why not recognize your handicap and develop another hobby that will not affect your health?

KIDNEY DEFECT

Mrs. T. writes: Can you tell me anything about polycystic kidneys? REPLY

This is a congenital and probably hereditary condition in which part of the kidney tissue is replaced with large sacs filled with fluid. Blood in the urine and high blood pressure are the most common manifestations.

By Drew Pearson

protect American stockholders is an SEC staff, cut down to the most miserly budget in history. Yet this is a time when the SEC must pass on more stock issues than ever before; is engaged in more proxy fights than ever before in history.

The SEC, written into law by Sam Rayburn under Roosevelt, used to boast such outstanding public officials as Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas; the late Jerome Frank of the Court of Appeals; Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to England; Leon Henderson, former head of OPA; and Justice Ferdinand Pecora of the New York Supreme Court. Now it is the stepchild of the Eisenhower administration. One of the best ways to kill an agency is to starve it to death.

Note—Ten million families now own stocks. All of them are dependent in one way or another on the SEC as the government watchdog for clean securities.

Washington Low-Downs

Vic Cramer, onetime ace trust buster of the Justice Department, is going to clam up when he testifies before Congressman Celler's trust-busting committee on the telephone monopoly. Cramer knows where the bodies are buried in the fixing of the telephone consent decree, but isn't going to cooperate with Congress. The grand jury probing the Federal Communications Commission and the Mack case is weak. Some of the jurors don't understand what it's all about. They will do what the District Attorney wants them to do. Probable result: No prosecutions. The Harlem Globetrotters, who patriotically went with me to North Africa to entertain U.S. troops last Christmas, will stage a big game at the University of Maryland next week with the College All-Stars. Attorney General Bill Rogers will open the game by tossing up the ball. The FCC has delayed four months in blessing the sale of the Kansas City Star's TV and radio stations. Usually this is automatic. Maybe the FCC is being careful for a change.

Earthquakes And Baths

Bill O'Dwyer, Manhattan's fa-

mous ex-mayor and former Ambassador to Mexico, was taking a shower in the Gresham Hotel in Dublin when the Associated Press came to tell him that his office building in Mexico City had fallen over at 2:30 a. m.

"Anyone hurt?" asked O'Dwyer.

"No," replied the AP. "What are you going to do?" "I'm going back to finish my shower."

Backstage In New York

Democrats usually start battling between themselves when victory seems just around the corner and that's what they're doing in New York right now. Result could be Nelson Rockefeller, Republican, as Governor.

The conservative wing of the Democratic party (sometimes called the Irish wing) wants Big Jim Farley to run for the Senate. This has brought howls of opposition from the Liberal party which holds the balance of power, also from Roosevelt Democrats. Both remember how Big Jim knifed FDR in his latter years. Conservative Democrats are willing to compromise—maybe—with Frank Hogan, the District Attorney, or Tom Murray, former Atomic Energy Commissioner. But they don't want Tom Finletter, former Air Force Secretary.

As a result Dave Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies Garment Workers and moving spirit in the Liberal party, has thrown down the gauntlet. He has dropped private threats that if the Democrats don't nominate a Liberal, he will swing the Liberal party over to Nelson Rockefeller for Governor, thereby undercutting Gov. Averell Harriman.

There's an interesting bond between Dubinsky and Rockefeller. Dubinsky's friend and adviser for years has been Mrs. Anne Rosenberg, former Assistant Secretary of Defense. The Rockefeller family's labor adviser for many years has been the same Mrs. Anne Rosenberg. She is not averse to a marriage between Nelson Rockefeller, Republican candidate for governor, and the Liberal party.

Futuristic

By Brother Barnabas

What the future holds for anybody, or everybody or anything on this planet is anybody's guess. The future alone can tell.

In this age of flux when nothing is certain but death and taxes, thoughtful men are wondering what next: when will the recession end; will there be another world war and if so when; when will the world itself come to an end and the heavens be rolled up as a scroll.

What the future of mankind is to be is a burning question and we are all involved in it.

The past is the womb of the future. No chrysalis, no butterfly. Whence man came foretells whither he goeth.

Of the origin of man Genesis has this to say: "The Lord God formed man of the slime of the earth (2:7, D.V.) and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living being (2:8, R. S. V.)."

Science says that man began with a speck of viable protoplasm emerging from a pit of primordial ooze, that he ascended the scale of development through vast eons till by the law of the survival of the fittest he has reached the pinnacle of his development.

Armageddon

Now with space explorations and anti-missile missiles coming on will man develop his own Frankenstein, or come to an Armageddon where the issue will be fought out between the amoeba and God?

When Florence Nightingale went to Scutari to relieve the intolerable conditions among the slaughter of the Crimean war, the sick and dying did not say "There comes a beautiful amoeba," but they must have thought when God made that Angel of Mercy he didn't do anything else that day but sit around and feel good.

Behaviourism, a mechanistic interpretation of man and mind, had quite a run when written about by J. B. Watson back in 1913 and 1915.

Why Were We Born?

Why do we behave like humans? Why were we born? Why was I not born somebody else? Why did I land in this garden spot and not in Fuzzy-wuzzy land? Where was God when it happened?

Would it have been money in my pocket if I had never been born?

It must have been in one of God's lighter or self-forgetful moments that he created men to resemble monkeys, or that he had a sense of humor when he made men who are jokes.

Why did we go to church last Easter and won't return till Easter 1959?

Why did one man become a priest, a preacher or a rabbi, and another a lawyer, politician or undertaker?

A preacher is an uplifter. An undertaker will let you down.

In a small town out west there lived an undertaker with a furniture store annex. At his death the father-in-law of the preacher wanted to take over the business and present it to his new son-in-law who he thought might have mentality enough to be a mortician, but not enough to be a howling success as a pulpiteer.

Unless a vicar is an irremovable rector he is a peripatetic trouble shooter. The undertaker is a permanent fixture.

The two are complementary. The one preaches to the quick and the dead, the other carries them out.

An Embarrassing Situation

One undertaker is enough for a congregation. Two or more in the same church complicate matters.

The solution would be for them to unite in one firm, or both to belong to the official board, with one taking the affirmative side of every question and the other the negative.

A supply preacher was conducting a funeral in a small country church. He arrived late and the casket was closed.

Coming to the place in his remarks where he needed to know the sex of the deceased, he leaned forward to the mortician on the front seat and whispered "He or She?" He replied, "No, cousin."

Obviously your future and that of your son cannot be the same. The world and everything in it has changed. Your future is past, his is to come.

Your decisions were simple and fundamental. His are complex and multiple. With you it was to smoke or not to smoke. With him it is to decide which of the many brands of cigarettes, if any, he should smoke since all claim to be least poisonous.

Prepare for the future beginning today. Our todays and our yesterdays are the blocks with which we build, echoes.

Funds Needed By Frostburg's Industrial Unit

New Plant Nears Completion

FROSTBURG — Officers of the Frostburg Industrial Development Company revealed that a number of persons who pledged to purchase a bond for the erection of the new factory to be used by the undergarment company have not made good their pledges and that the money is urgently needed to meet the obligations of the firm.

The company has had to resort to advertising and other means in order to bring to mind of persons that their word was accepted at face value and that the industrial company went ahead and erected a $100,000 building as a result.

Howard Shuman, chairman of the company, pointed out today that the group which have been supervising the erection of the factory has run into many problems which have taken time and money to resolve. None of these people, he said, are receiving any remuneration whatsoever and do not want any. They, too, have purchased bonds and feel that since this is a community venture those persons who have pledged should be as good as their word and live up to their agreement.

The contract with the construction company calls for the building to be completed by April 28, and be ready for the undergarment company. Gas and water lines are now being laid.

Celtics, Hawks Clash Tonight

Pro Teams Play 6th Game In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The sixth game of pro basketball's World Series Saturday night may hinge on a personal duel between two of the game's best little men—Boston's Bob Cousy and St. Louis' Slater Martin.

St. Louis took a 3-2 lead over the Celtics in the best-of-seven National Basketball Assn. title playoff with Martin outscoring Cousy 25-10 in a 102-100 Hawks victory at Boston Wednesday.

Cousy, an NBA all-star seven straight years, is small by NBA standards at 6-foot-1. He is considered the game's best backliner, passer and playmaker.

But Cousy admits that Martin, the NBA's shortest man at 5-foot-10, gives him more trouble than any player in the league.

Their hot man-to-man battle has been a highlight of each game.

Silky Sullivan Finishes Third At Golden Gate

ALBANY, Calif. (AP)—Stretch-running Silky Sullivan failed to make up a 29½ length deficit Friday and finished third behind the virtually unknown Gene Fishin' and Furryvan in a Kentucky Derby tune-up at Golden Gate Fields.

Racing in the $10,000 Greater Northern California Mile before a record Northern California week-day race throng of 19,102, Silky Sullivan did just what he was supposed to do except win.

He trailed by 29½ lengths at the halfway point as the Llangollen Farms' Gene Fishin' set the pace. And he began circling other horses among his six foes on the final turn.

But then he hung and couldn't make it as Gene Fishin' crossed the line 5½ lengths in front and Furryvan cut his nose over just before Silky and jockey Willie Shoemaker got there.

Milwaukee Braves

The Milwaukee Braves should repeat as National League champions in 1958.

Unless the world champs grow too complacent or suffer a sharp reversal of form, they appear to have the talent to win another rugged battle for the top prize.

A glance at the Milwaukee roster reveals:

CATCHING — Very good if Del Crandall's sore elbow heals. Del Rice and Carl Sawalski are top-flight reserves.

PITCHING — Talented and deep. Addition of Bob Rush, Don Kaiser and Dick Littlefield should help. Braves have Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette, Bob Buhl, Bob Trowbridge, Gene Conley, Ernie Johnson, Joey Jay, Carlton Wiley and Don McMahon.

INFIELD — Packs sock. Joe Adcock (1b), Red Schoendienst (2b), Johnny Logan (s.s.) and Ed Mathews (3b) is the first line and Frank Torre (1b) and Felix Mantilla are the top reserves.

OUTFIELD — Strong even without Bill Bruton. Much punch in Hank Aaron, Wes Covington, Bob Hazle and Andy Paiko.

Consensus: First Place.

Whitt Paces Golf Tourney

Leads Greensboro Open By Stroke

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Don Whitt, 27-year-old Alameda, Calif., professional who has been battling a prolonged slump, putted his way into a shaky one-stroke lead with a 67 Friday in the first round of the $15,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

His four under par for the Star-mountain Forest Country Club course, was a fitting birthday present for his wife, Monica, who is traveling with him and their two children.

Whitt was only one shot ahead of five rivals, Canadians Jerry Magee and Al Balding, Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn., Johnny Pott of Shreveport, La., and Gene Bone of Detroit.

Another shot back at 69, two behind the leader, came five more professionals, Bob Keller, former Army Air Force pilot from Eglin Field, Fla.; Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia; Chuck Alexander of nearby High Point and two promising California youngsters, Tony Lema of Napa and John McMullin of Fair Oaks.

Eleven men shot one under par 70s, among them Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., six time winner here. In all, 22 men in the field of 130 broke par and 12 equalled it.

New Fire Truck Due Next Week

Cumberland's new 2,500-gallon pumper truck is scheduled to arrive next week, Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker said yesterday.

The arrival, originally set for this week, was delayed because the company said it was installing new-type carburetors on the equipment at no extra cost to the city.

Cost of the truck has been estimated at $25,000, half of which is coming from this fiscal year's department appropriation and half the next fiscal year.

The America LaFrance Company said the truck will be shipped by rail from Elmira, N. Y.

The vehicle will go to Central Fire Station.

Midland Youth Is Found Dead At Rosewood

Raymond Schurg Was Strangled

The body of a 21-year-old patient of Rosewood State Training School, identified as Raymond Everett Schurg of Midland, was found yesterday in a clump of underbrush on the institution grounds.

Police and other authorities who are investigating said the young man appeared to have been strangled. The body was sent to a Baltimore morgue for an autopsy.

According to Dr. George C. Medairy, superintendent of Rosewood, which is located near Owings Mills, a search was started for Schurg when he failed to appear for lunch on Thursday. It was reported the young man had been with two other youths on a rabbit-trapping expedition on the institution's grounds, some of which is wooded country.

Known familiarly to his friends and former schoolmates in the Midland area as "Eddie" Schurg, the young man was admitted to the school for retarded youngsters in 1953.

He is a son of Raymond and Virginia Schurg, Church Hill, Midland, and besides his parents is also survived by two sisters, Rosetta and Anna Jean, and three brothers, Richard, Carl and Dale Schurg.

No funeral arrangements have been made.

Capt. William J. Simms of the Baltimore County Police said the victim probably was killed Thursday night. The only evidence of violence were marks around his neck.

Dr. Medairy, school superintendent, said the youth was unable to speak.

A pile of clothing was found about 50 yards from Schurg's body, Capt. Simms said. He said the garments did not contain the required name markings and so they could not be identified positively as those of Schurg.

He was missing from the noon meal Thursday and at a roll call, so searching parties made up of employees and a number of patients fanned out over the school grounds.

Simms said there was no attempt to conceal the body and added "there is very little evidence to work with" until a murder weapon is located. He said this might have been a rope or cord.

Schurg had been housed in King Cottage, a dormitory for some 137 boys.

Taxpayers Can Get Refunds For Education

U.S. Senator J. Glenn Beall and Dr. Thomas G. Pullen both sent telegrams to Cumberland yesterday to remind taxpayers about the details of the so-called income tax "bonanza" for those who have taken courses of study in connection with their work.

Senator Beall, in a telegram to The Cumberland News, called attention to the general impression that this tax-refund ruling applies only to teachers.

"As a matter of fact," the Senator said, "engineers, accountants, doctors of medicine and many others are entitled to benefit from the ruling and should seek refunds immediately."

Dr. Pullen sent his telegram to Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster. In it he explains that he has been advised by Richard Edelen of the district director's office of the Internal Revenue Service in Baltimore that teachers who are unable to obtain the proper form to claim refund for 1954 may instead use a letter of intent. When educational expense data is not readily available, a teacher may use the term "One Dollar Plus" and later submit the actual amount of expense and refund claimed for 1954.

Both telegrams emphasized that the deadline for filing claims for refund for educational expense incurred during 1954 is next Tuesday, April 15. This deadline does not apply for 1955, 1956 and 1957.

Explaining the ruling of the Treasury Department of April 5, Senator Beall continued:

"Expenditures made by a taxpayer for his education are deductible if they are for education (including research activities) undertaken primarily for the purpose of:

"(1) Maintaining or improving skills required by the taxpayer in his employment or other trade or business, or

"(2) Meeting the express requirements of a taxpayer's employer, or the requirements of applicable law or regulations, imposed as a condition to the retention by the taxpayer of his salary, status or employment."

Blanks for the revised returns are obtainable at all Internal Revenue offices.

Acoustical Tile For Library Is Discussed

Commissioners Get Road Complaints

If the Cumberland Free Public Library gets more expensive acoustical ceiling material installed it will be because the funds are provided by the Mayor and City Council.

James Alfred Avirett and Miss Mary G. Walsh, representing the library, attended yesterday's meeting of the Allegany County Board of County Commissioners to thank the commissioners for awarding the contract for the acoustical work. Then they showed the commissioners samples of the two types of acoustical material and recommended the more expensive type.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the commissioners, informed them that it would be impossible to change the bid after the contract already has been awarded. He suggested that they might ask the Mayor and City Council for the difference.

A number of road matters also were discussed yesterday. George Miller, who lives on "J" Avenue in Potomac Park, reported that trucks had broken drainage pipe which he had installed. He requested the county to bear the expense of repairing the pipes. County Roads Supervisor J. Walker Chapman was instructed to investigate the matter.

William F. Fitzgerald, Cresap Park, representing Anna Jones, showed the commissioners a letter from the county commissioners dated June 22, 1954, which informed her that steps and wall would be built by the county in front of her property. Commissioner William A. Wilson said the work should have been done in keeping with the promise of the previous administration. Mr. Chapman was instructed to get prices on the cost of building the wall and steps.

William Sowers, Bowman's Addition, requested an order from the county to enable him to obtain rejects from the quarry to use on his road leading off Valley Road. He was requested to confer with Mr. Chapman.

John F. Rowe, who lives on Winchester Road, said he had complained to the State Roads Commission about water running off State Route 53 onto his property and he said nothing had been done about it. James G. Stevenson, clerk to the commissioners, was instructed to write to G. Bates Chaires, SRC engineer, for additional data.

A petition signed by 18 property owners on Avenue "C" in Election District 6 was submitted. The signers offered to grant the county commissioners 40-foot-right-of-way in order to get the County Roads Department to repair and improve the street.

Youth Legislators Study Safety, Teacher Pay Bills

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Traffic safety, school teachers and voting concerned the teen-age delegates to Maryland's Model Legislature Friday.

Plunging into their first full day of the 3-day session, the 197 senators and delegates passed eight bills out of a total of 50 introduced Thursday at the mock assembly sponsored by the YMCA.

The only bill passed by both houses was one requiring the governor to appoint a committee to study a merit system of pay for public school teachers.

This act now goes for a signature or veto to the youth governor, 17-year-old William Sitter of Cumberland.

The House passed five bills in its two sessions, and the Senate passed three.

The senior body spent most of the day debating a bill which would call for a referendum on lowering the voting age from 21 to 19.

This act, sponsored by Jay Simarian of Bethesda-Chevy Chase, failed to get the two-thirds vote required for a proposed constitutional amendment at the morning session. But it was revived at the afternoon meeting and squeaked by.

A bill to lower the voting age to 18 was proposed at the real 1958 General Assembly but died in committee after several teenagers appeared to speak against it.

Other bills getting halfway through the legislative process included measures setting up a point system for revocation of drivers' licenses, requiring State inspection of motor vehicles, and improving teachers' retirement benefits.

The junior lawmakers took time out from their work to hear a brief address in which Gov. McKeldin urged them to seek out new ideas.

"Be not afraid to reach above the growth of yesterday," McKeldin said. "Seek out the new and turn it to the use and wellbeing of the citizenry."

Youth governor Sitter will address a joint session of the assembly Saturday afternoon to review the achievements of the Legislature. Another highlight on the concluding program will be presentation of the 1958 youth and government award for distinguished service to Maryland youth.

EASTER SEAL LUCKY BUCKS NEEDED NOW

Another 262 lucky bucks rolled into the coffers of the Easter Seal headquarters at the Allegany County League for Crippled Children yesterday.

This brings the total to $8,496 for the drive this spring, and officials of the league hope $12,000 will be realized by the time the campaign is over.

Each lucky buck contributed for Easter Seals goes to help crippled and handicapped children of this area.

Approximately 23,000 seals were mailed to residents of this section. So if you haven't mailed your lucky buck for the crippled children, do so now.

Plan Is Formed For Preventing Exodus Of Rats

Health Department To Direct Program

Plans to prevent an exodus of rats from the site of the city's third housing project were formulated yesterday afternoon during a meeting in City Hall.

The strategy was set at the meeting called by the Allegany County Health Department and attended by representatives of the City of Cumberland, the Housing Authority of the City of Cumberland and the State Roads Commission.

The purpose, according to J. B. Dowling, Health Department sanitarian, was to make plans to kill rats harbored in a number of buildings in an area bounded by Oldtown Road, Thomas Street, Hemlock Alley and Rolling Mill Alley.

To Be Torn Down

The houses are to be torn down to make room for the housing project and the south approach to the Cumberland Thruway, and Mr. Dowling said the rodents are starting to move from the neighborhood to the Maryland Avenue-Oldtown Road area.

The public housing project has been stymied for some time by the conflict with the Thruway approach and some of the needed properties have been lying idle awaiting a decision. Others needed are still being used because the families have been unable to find other quarters.

Nine of the properties were purchased by the State Roads Commission, which failed to get bids for razing the houses to the ground.

Mr. Dowling said SRC officials said bids will be asked again for razing the dwellings.

Will Cooperate

He said both the Housing Authority and the State Roads Commission promised full cooperation in plans for killing the area's rat population.

The Health Department, he added, is to work out plans for having the rats killed before they leave for other quarters.

Mayor Roy W. Eves, he said, insisted that a satisfactory plan be adopted for abating the nuisance. Cost of the work will be met by the two agencies.

Attending were Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer, and Dowling, who explained the situation; Fire Chief V. A. Parker and Mayor Eves; James B. Raines, executive director; W. M. Long, accountant, and Rev. H. M. Richardson, chairman of the Housing Authority, and George B. Jenkins and George B. Hale, of the State Roads Commission.

Plan To Curb Local Nuisances Is Worked Out

Plans for serving court orders to curb nuisances here were worked out yesterday at a conference between the Health Department and the City of Cumberland.

Attending the meeting held in City Hall were Mayor Roy W. Eves, City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and J. B. Dowling, chief sanitarian for the Allegany County Health Department.

The meeting, Mr. Dowling said, was called to work out plans for serving court orders to halt major nuisance complaints received in the City of Cumberland.

They include throwing trash and grease in city streets, dumping garbage and trash in streets and alleys and burning trash and refuse in public streets and alleys.

He said such nuisances are completely unnecessary, since the refuse will be picked up free by city garbage crews.

City officials, Mr. Dowling said, instructed the Health Department to serve warrants and prosecute violators if necessary.
